Dear Sir and Madam,

Production Design in our time is a very distinct animal. Audio, video and lighting –aspects have to be combined to one homogeneous unit, that catches attention and at the same time does not over-challenge the viewers attention.

Mr. Kaiser has a unique potion to fulfill these requirements and puts his own person distinctly into any production design situation. His father designed the world-famous Revox A77, B77 and A 700 reel to reel machines and passed a unique approach onto his son. Out of his own interested , Mr. Kaiser extended his knowledge into all areas of Production Design, including video- and projection design. The fact that he worked on these elements out of himself and with the background of a German stile thorough technical intuition, gives him a very unique appearance in the production-design world.

He is able to find very unorthodox on-the-spot solutions and does not rest, until the whole production is finished. His artistic sense, to use technology elements, is remarkable. Few designer combine such different elements. Mr. Kaiser is a museum goer and studies very thoroughly and ongoing the contemporary art-world. This is an irreplaceable substance in a production environment, that is dominated by pure technicians, with rather little fine-motoric and people skills.

Sincerely,
